INCUMBENTS RETAINED IN MUNICIPAL ELECTION

Substantial Majorities Given to All of City's Present Officers; Fire House Bonds Carry; Others Fail

All the incumbents who stood for re-election at the municipal election Monday were returned to their places with a substantial majority by the voters of Redwood City. The contest was a spirited one, as every office was contested by a candidate sponsored by the Good Government League. A heavy vote was the result, and greater enthusiasm was shown than has been exhibited in a town election for many years.

The members of the city council who were re-elected Monday were George McNulty, D. R. Stafford and Z. T. Thorning. McNulty has served the town in this capacity for twelve years and is the senior member of the board. Stafford was appointed to succeed A. E. Monteth when the latter resigned from the board, and Thorning was elected for a short term last election, having been appointed to fill the vacancy in the board caused by the resignation of

C. K. Mable. All three men are prominently identified with the commercial life of the town and are all highly thought of in the community.

City Clerk W. A. Price was re-elected over opposition of two other aspirants for the place. Price has held the position for twelve years and received a big plurality of the votes cast at Monday's election. He received 219 votes more than his nearest contestant.

The winning candidate in the race for city treasurer was B. E. Myers. Myers was appointed to fill the unexpired term of the late Frank K. Towne. He is a tireless and conscientious worker. His ability for organization and attention to details have done much for the city's business during the short time in which he has been in charge of that work. The tabulated results of the election Monday are as follows:

The meeting Tuesday night was presided over by Guy R. Kennedy, and the chairman of the meeting was Lindsey Gray.

A district meeting of Exchange Clubs was held last evening in Santa Cruz at which time a recently organized Exchange Club of Mayfield was given its charter. A special train was run from San Francisco to San Cruz, and many of the local Exchange Clubs attended the district meeting.

Plans are complete for the state convention of Exchange Clubs, which will be held in Fresno May 3, 4 and 5. Delegates elected from the local club are Dr. W. B. Langston and Lindsey Gray, with A. J. Big Rally Here For Increasing Hoover Interest

The Redwood City Hoover for President Club will hold a big rally in the supervisors' chamber in the court house next Thursday evening. Able speakers will be present to address the assembly. The purpose of the meeting is to urge the voters to come to the polls on May 1st, to cast their ballot for Hoover and thus show their interest in the candidate and send the delegates to the Kansas City Republican convention with a tremendous vote. This will have a psychological effect upon the convention. The bigger the vote the better the chance for the nomination of Hoover.

The chambers of the supervisors next Thursday evening should be packed by the admirers and well wishers of the popular secretary of commerce.

With Hoover in the White House, California may expect many favors. The advertising state would get in having a favorite son as president can not be estimated at this time. All California should be a unit for Herbert Hoover.

Gen. Geo. S. Evans Relief Corps No. 36 will hold a card party in the Odd Fellows Hall Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Harry Potts is chairman of the committee which is in charge of the arrangements. Admission will be 35 cents.

Death came to Frank Allen, following an attack of paralysis, which he suffered more than two months ago, and from which he never recovered.

The deceased was a prominent business man of this city, and one who was interested in the various enterprises which he thought were for the good of the community. When the Redwood City Kiwanis Club was formed four years ago, he was one of the charter members, and until he was stricken with last illness was one of the most active and generous members of that organization. He was particularly fond of children, and whenever the Kiwanis club had some charitable work on hand, where the little ones were to be helped, Frank Allen was always one of the most interested workers.

For the past eleven years he has been engaged in the dyeing and cleaning works in this city as proprietor of the De Luxe Cleaning and Dyeing Works on Main street. Road Under Tracks Proposed to C. of C.

A roadway under the S. P. tracks and under the highway to connect the section of town west of the highway with the business section without having to cross, either the tracks or the busy highway was suggested by Attorney David Cosgrave at the luncheon meeting of the chamber of commerce this week.

Cosgrave's suggestion was that Hamilton street be extended from its present termination near Broadway and be carried under the tracks of the S. P., where the tracks are already on a trestle, and be continued under the highway to join with one of the streets west of that road.

The suggestion met with considerable approval by members of the chamber of commerce and the matter may be taken up by that body in the future.

L. E. Miller, proprietor of the Sequoia Drug Store on Broadway, is moving here this week with his family. Owing to illness, the family has been unable to come to Redwood City sooner, although plans had been made for their arrival earlier.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Evidencing the large number of labor camps in various California industries, the State Immigration and Housing Commission recently announced that 1,984 of them were inspected by commission representatives during the last. The camps housed 93,843 workers.

Due to what apparently is real competition among the three companies, the State of California will save approximately $40,000 this year on her tire purchases as a result of favorable contracts awarded by State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillin.

Mining men of all Northern California counties expressed satisfaction a few days ago over the announcement of Fred Stever, director of natural resources, that a branch of the State Mining Bureau would be established in Redding. All business of the mining division for Shasta, Trinity, Siskiyou and Modoc counties will be transacted through the new office and a permanent exhibit of ores will be installed.

California's apportionment of accident prevention is somewhat concerned over the upward trend of industrial mishaps in the Golden State. In the last four years these have increased from 600 to 800 a day and are still on the rise. "Consequently," said Will J. French, State director of industrial relations, "it reasonably may be expected that it will not be long until the dread 1,000-a-day mark will be reached, though a figure is not a credit to a progressive State like the one in which we live."

The State Government owns $31,796,000 worth of land, exclusive of State school lands held for disposition by the State Land Office, according to an announcement by the Department of Finance. The State owns 76,000 acres outright and leases 6,023 acres in addition. The university of California with 23,337 acres, is the leading land holder among State agencies.

Co-operation in working out a comprehensive, constructive plan for meeting needs of the adult blind was asked by the State government last week of all California agencies interested in the problem. Associations for the adult blind already have been formed in both Northern and Southern California. The State is now conducting a survey to determine the number of California adult blind in need of industrial training and of custodian care.

California's State traffic officer enforcement of the State motor vehicle laws has its own way—and then some. George F. Moynahan, acting chief inspector of the division, has announced figures showing that delinquent fees collected by these officers and fines for which they were responsible exceeded the amount paid them in salaries during the past year by more than $48,000. The total salary for the year was announced by Moynahan as $640,412.86.

What its creators hope will be a "cool proof" airplane is under construction at the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. Dr. Robert A. Millikan, world famous scientist in head of this institution. The plane will embody radically new structural features, according to its designers, A. A. Merrill and Clark C. Millikan, of the institute's department of aeronautics. Its chief departure from the standard type will be a moveable lower wing. "This new plane will fly itself," Merrill said. "The pilot sets the wings for a certain speed and angle and it will never stall, unless he chooses to stall it."

Announcement has been made in Washington by Mayor General Edgar J. Jadin, chief of engineers of the United States War Department, that the Sacramento, San Joaquin and Kern Rivers will receive $32,000 of the $2,500,000 made available for a general flood control study of all rivers in the United States. A. M. Barton, general manager of the State reclamation board, was advised by the United States district engineer's office in San Francisco a few days ago that the study on the Sacramento River will consist mostly of showing the feasibility of combining flood control, irrigation, power development and navigation protection into a single project.

Flour purchased by the State for its institution for the new quarter cost $6.55 per barrel as against $6.09 for the last quarter, an increase of 8 per cent. State Purchasing Agent W. G. McMillin, who made this announcement last week, declared the price of flour usually goes up about this season of the year. Rice prices for the new quarter were low, the State contracting for this food at $3.82 a pound as against 4 1/2 cents for the last quarter. The price of sugar was practically the same, 5 1/2 cents per pound.

Blindness in babies, which once caused 15 per cent of all blindness, has not once been reported in California during the last three years. It was stated a few days ago to the welfare department of the Community Chest. Free distribution of ampoules containing nitrate of silver is responsible for the prevention of baby blindness, according to Dr. Edward F. Glasser, member of the State Board of Health. Installation of this nitrate of silver solution into babies' eyes at birth is enforced by the State board, he stated.

California's total estimated daily average crude oil production increased 11,500 barrels during the week ended March 31; figures released by the American Petroleum Institute show. The total estimated daily average crude oil production for the week was $29,500 barrels, compared with 615,000 barrels for the week ended March 24. Principal fluctuations in production were in the Long Beach and Ventura Avenue fields. Long Beach increased to 130,000 barrels from 123,000 barrels the preceding week, while Ventura Avenue increased to 53,500 barrels from 47,500 barrels.

Fifty prisoners will arrive at San Luis Obispo April 15 to go to the State prison camp at Salmon Creek Falls. They will work on the San Simeon-Carmel highway. This was announced a few days ago by division five of the State highway commission. Another fifty prisoners will follow two weeks later.

Twenty-five permits for water diversions from California streams were issued by the State division of water rights during March, against a total of twenty-two applications received. Practically all of the permits were small.

California's fame as a leader in library development has spread to Russia. State Librarian Milton J. Ferguson last week announced receipt of a request from Moscow, Russia, for plans and specifications for the State library building of the Capitol Extension group. The request came from Miss Henriette Derman, director of the library of the Communist Academy. It will be complied with.

A complete survey of California's unemployment problem is to be undertaken during the next few weeks by a special committee of citizens appointed by Governor C. C. Young. The committee which the Governor is expected to announce shortly will go into all phases of the question, and will probably be composed of an equal number of northern California and Southern California residents.

Committees are being organized in every community of the State to make arrangements for California's observance of American Forest Week, April 22-25. Charles G. Dunwoody, executive secretary directing the observance, announced last week. Governor C. C. Young has been named general chairman for the week, and an executive committee was appointed consisting of: E. W. Murphy, D. H. Steinmetz, C. R. Johnson, and W. M. Wheeler, all officers of the timber development association.

More than 10,000 California farmers and orchardists last week pledged themselves, through their statewide organizations, to help wipe out the stigma of legalized prize fighting. Resolutions condemning the prize fight law as a disgrace to the State were adopted by the executive committee of the California State Grange, meeting held at San Francisco. Hundreds of branches throughout the State, and more than 10,000 farmers' families, are represented by the committee.

"God's first temples" will not be desecrated after all. California's mighty sequoias in the Calaveras Big Tree Grove, some of them older than the pyramids of Egypt, will live on for the wonderment of posterity. This was wired from Washington last week to Winfield Scott of San Francisco, leader in the movement to save the trees. The Senate, responding to the appeal of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, passed the Calaveras Grove bill paying the way for a 6,120-acre State park.

Highway contracts amounting to $235,000 were let last week by Bert B. Meek, State director of public works. All are for work in Superior California. San Joaquin county draws the bulk of the expenditure, through a joint contract awarded to Frederickson Brothers and Fredericks & Watson of Oakland for paving 6.8 miles between the San Joaquin River bridge and French Camp with Portland cement. The combined bid price for the work is $203,847.05.

Railroads operating in California will not be permitted to assess a switching charge against their shipper at junction points, in conjunction with through joint rates, the State Railroad Commission against ruled a few days ago. In 1925 the companies asked permission to apply a switching charge of $2.70, at an estimated cost of over $300,000 annually to California shippers. When this was refused by the commission, the shippers asked for a re-hearing, which a few days ago was denied.

The State has on secret fraternities in the public schools a few days ago hit all students of California junior colleges. The anti-fraternity law forbids secret societies in the elementary and secondary schools, and the State school law, according to Sam H. Cohn, deputy State superintendent of public instruction, specifically classifies the junior colleges as secondary schools. Fraternities are not prohibited at the University of California, but the statute, Cohn said, does not allow membership of junior colleges students.

Announcing that all forest rangers in California's fire protection organization will go on duty May 1st, State Forester M. B. Pratt last week made several revisions in the areas to be supervised by his staff of inspectors. For the first time an inspector charged with supervising the forest-protection work in Southern California: Walter J. Coupe, inspector last year for Butte, Yuba, Nevada and Colusa counties, with headquarters at Oroville, was assigned to the Southern California area.

Governor C. C. Young has been invited by the people of Guernville and the Russian River section to come back into the scenes of his early youth when he taught the little school in the foothills among the Redwoods near Guernville, at a time when he had no thought of becoming the chief executive of California. He has been asked to come to the Russian River section on May 26, when a colorful celebration, including historic pageantry and other features, will commemorate the opening for the summer of the great resort section.

Fifty-three Californians recently had their licenses to operate motor vehicles revoked for periods ranging from six months to permanent. This is announced by the State motor vehicle department. Twenty-five of this number lost their right to drive because of conviction of driving while intoxicated. The division's records show 49 of the 99 licenses revoked during the first two months of this year were on similar charges. One license was revoked permanently because of an accident that involved the death of a pedestrian.

Hoff Out of Olympic Games

CHARLEY HOFF, the smiling, young viking who figuratively vaulted his way across the American continent two years ago in world's record fashion, seems to have propelled himself right out of the amateur picture. The latest information from Norway, authentically labeled, is that the Norwegian athletic powers, in the most approved A. A. U. manner, have turned a deaf ear to all appeals for the reinstatement of Hoff and shut the door to his entry in the Olympic games this year at Amsterdam.

Hoff got into difficulties over his expense accounts and his vaulting engagements while en route to the Pacific coast in the spring of 1925 after a sensational transcontinental tour, in which he exhibited a prowess with the pole that surpassed anything ever seen before in America.

One of the most likable athletic invaders ever to step on these shores, a bundle of wiry athletic energy, the vaulting viking Hoff lifted it about 8 inches, and a year ago Carr vaulted to the present indoor record of 13 feet 9 1/4 inches. Last May he cleared 14 feet for the first time in athletic history.

Hoff was considered in a class by himself when he came to this country. The indoor record was 13 feet then, a mark that was seldom attained either indoors or out. But within a few months Hoff lifted it about 8 inches, and a year ago Carr vaulted to the present indoor record of 13 feet 9 1/4 inches. Last May he cleared 14 feet for the first time in athletic history.

France Eyes Reindeer as Beasts of Burden

Reindeer may become used extensively in place of oxen and horses in the mountain districts of France, if the experiments, just agreed upon, of raising them in the Haute Savoie district proves a success. The French ministry of agriculture has granted a subsidy to a society to help it with its reindeer farm. It may come as a surprise to many to know that reindeer are actually in use already in one town in France, so that the Laplanders will not be the only ones in Europe to hear reindeer bells in villages. If one takes the trail from Annecy, where the lake is intensely blue, to Chamonix, at the foot of Mont Blanc, he will pass through the village of Megeve. Should it be in the season of snow and should he care to descend, he would be likely to see reindeer drawing sledges.—Exchange.

Smokes Ecra-sate Cigars

Smoking long cigars with an ecra-sate cartridge in each is the feat of a young athlete at Baden, Austria. When he believes that the explosion is about to take place he holds the stump between his teeth and lets the "big bang" proceed. The youth has schooled himself to keep his head perfectly still and avoid a recoil by stiffening the muscles of his neck. He says that if an ordinary man smoked an ecra-sate cigar, the recoil would almost blow his head off, but he has so trained his muscles that he will permit anyone to hold a sharp-pointed instrument close to the nape of the neck when the explosion takes place.

CERTIFIED BABIES FOLLOW IN WAKE OF CERTIFIED MILK

Adoption Proceedings
Superintended By State Regulations

By ESTO BROUGHTON
SACRAMENTO, April 11.—If the story don't leave a little fairy in your home all you need to do in this modern age of efficiency is to send an S. O. S. for an official state substitute.
For certified babies have followed certified milk into California homes, according to Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, state director of social welfare, who has supervised all adoptions since the passage of the Jones adoption law requiring state approval.
Vicarious motherhood under state supervision has been de-lated of all element of chance. Foster parents may have a girl, if they prefer, or a boy if they prefer masculine off-spring, they can even secure half grown infants if they prefer to postpone parenthood until after the teething period.

But adopting parents must not cross racial lines, however international they may be by preference, and generally they must conform to the religious background of the foster child, according to Mrs. Saylor.
Of the 355 infants whose adoptions have received the seal of state approval, by far the larger number were from Los Angeles. In her role as the greatest foster mother among the 58 counties, the southern community including the outlying towns of Puen-te, Glendora, Palmdale, Bellflower, Downey, Compton, and Pasadena adopted 21 infants in January and 23 in February and now has a still larger number of applications pending among the 198 now on file.
The state adoption program is still new and in the last monthly report some of the counties, such as Stanislaus, Glenn, Lassen, Marin, Merced, Sutter and San Benito did not figure, although the machinery has been set in motion in all these localities for the work of bringing together the homeless child and the childless home, the chief of the welfare bureau reports.

Alameda county ranks second as a foster mother with a record of 6 applications a month received for the past two months and three adoptions completed each month. However, in the month of January, Orange county matched Alameda with the completion of 3 adoption proceedings.
From Butte county one application was received so far this year and the parental transfer completed, while one Solano county babe who sought a new father and mother in the old year had its desires granted in February with a court order of adoption. The request of one Colusa couple is still under consideration and as soon as the legal tape can be unwound a child will be glad to be home.
San Diego ranks fourth in the state in the number of willing men and women who have signed their intention of adopting children. Four adoptions are reported to have gone through during the new year and approximately eight are still pending.
The synthetic stork is active in Tulare county with four homes asking for the state's permission to O. K. adoption proceedings, while one of the two requests from Siskiyou county has already been accepted.
Two homes have been gladdened with babes in Placer county, since New Year and one of the two adoption proceedings sought in Tehama county this year has been approved.
In Santa Clara and San Mateo counties there have been a number of efforts made to bring motherless children and childless homes together, and one babe secured a new set of parents. Meanwhile, of the three applications received from San Bernardino county, only one had been approved according to the last report received at Sacramento.

Corrective measures should begin with the parents, the superintendent asserts, for the child is largely the result of his home training, or the lack of it.
Schools Plan for County Poster Show
All schools of San Mateo county will participate in preparing "Be Kind to Animals" posters for display at the annual pet and hobby show to be held at the Central Grammar School in San Mateo on April 28. The show is being held under the joint direction of the 17th district of the Parent-Teachers Association and the San Mateo County Y. M. C. A.
In addition to the "Be Kind to Animals" posters exhibits will be shown of various kinds.
A silver cup will be awarded to the school having the largest number of posters according to registration and cash prizes will be awarded the best productions.
Senior students at Sequoia are occupied with plans for graduation and senior week.
The girls council plans to be hostess to the boys council at a party in the library, April 21.

High School Notes

Sigma Delta Kappa, Sequoia Girls Dramatics Club is giving its annual sport dance tomorrow evening in the gymnasium. Decorations will transform the gymnasium into the porch of a country club with awnings and other effects.

While at the Convention the delegates will assist in the Friday edition of the Daily Californian. Attending from Sequoia will be Mauricia Mayer, Ed Coleman, Truman Letts, Lorin Denny and Miss Schmidt.

CATCHING FISH COSTS MAN HEAVY FINE HERE

A. Pritou, proprietor of a restaurant at Millbrae and a roadhouse at La Honda, was fined $300 yesterday by Justice of the Peace McAllister for catching trout out of season. Pritou was arrested Wednesday near La Honda by Game Warden Jack Burke. Upon searching Pritou's car, Burke found more than a hundred small trout.
Pritou admitted that he had been arrested for game violations before. Trout season is now closed and the fish found in the car were far above the limit even in an open season.
Game Warden Burke strongly endorsed the action of Judge McAllister in imposing a heavy fine on the game violator.

Divorce Blamed For Juvenile Delinquency

(By Capitol News Bureau)
SACRAMENTO, April 11.—Divorce is the principal cause of delinquency, according to O. H. Close, superintendent of Preston School of Industry.
Fifty per cent of juvenile delinquency cases are traceable to broken homes, Close claims. Boys suffer more than girls when their home life is broken up, in Close's opinion, because with the breaking of their natural home ties, they rove and fall into bad com-

Second, if the plans for your day require you to leave the house at 8:15 o'clock get up at seven, unaided by that domination of so-called efficiency, the alarm clock. You can soon train yourself to a regular hour for awakening by controlling the hour at which you retire. When your watch or bedroom clock shows seven stretch your arms and legs slowly. Extend the head. Come to activity gradually and arise leisurely. Don't let anyone sound that dreadful word "hurry" in your presence.

Third, take a half hour or more for getting ready for breakfast. This may include a variety of things, depending on circumstances. Shaving, bathing, cleaning the walks, looking at the roses, carrying out the ashes. Take your time! "Do it now, is a good slogan. "Do it now, easily and without hurry," is better.

Fourth, eat your breakfast free from a feeling of rush. Take your time. It's yours if you have planned with forethought. Then sit down in an easy chair for a few minutes afterwards to chat with the family, or to glance the morning paper, or to read the mail.

Fifth, by thought, planning and training you will readily accustom yourself to care for other necessary affairs and by 8:15 you should be prepared to make the day ahead of you the best you have ever had.

Some such procedure as this is greatly needed by most of us. Man must learn to combat in his personal life the malign influence of time tables, production schedules, and high speed vehicles. These would awaken him with a raucous sound, drive him willy nilly by his whole life long—a tense, strained automation, and bury him on time from an elevator apartment with uniformed attendants who seek to keep the traffic moving.

How do you start the day? Begin it tonight with an early adieu. Take personal charge of things tomorrow morning and refuse to be a slave to bad planning, careless schedules, thoughtlessness, and their usual accomplices, hurry.

SYNOPSIS

On a certain momentous Monday morning Miss Constance Fuller, cataloguer and editor of rare books at Darrow's New and Second-Hand Bookshop, New York, notices that the first customer to a dignified, white-bearded old gentleman, who enters into the store, is a young man named "Medical Works."

I then devoted my fingers to the index, and my thoughts to wondering if Peter would come and explain himself. I whirled to the window for more cards, and when I whirled back, there was Peter himself sitting in the chair. He was looking at the book, and I had to stare. He who was habitually so new as a fresh graduate was sitting in a suit that wrinkled all over his athletic form; his shoes were dusty; three slender curls on one side of a much swollen nose. He gazed at me so trustfully that I longed to weep.

"Good morning, Constance. This is a book of a sure, yes?" he suggested simply.

"Something happened, Peter?" I faltered, not overintelligently.

"Oh, no, nothing. Mr. Darrow's all ready to fire me, that's all."

"Mercy! Why?"

"Oh, don't let me disturb you! You'll find that card-catalogue more interesting than I am."

"Peter, I am obliged to put this catalogue in apple-pie order for this afternoon, when Mr. Darrow has come to see me. I am obliged to put this catalogue in apple-pie order for this afternoon, when Mr. Darrow has come to see me. Legal federation has been forever passing us to find for them. It's called "Notes on Medical Statistics in the Virginia Code," by Justice Whortley Clark, dated eighteen-ten. And since, "that announcement does not seem to me, unavailing particularly, I'll add that this American law book contains a Colfax bookplate."

CHAPTER II

The Odyssey of Peter

I now jumped so promptly and openly as to gratify Peter deeply, harassed as he was. I recalled that Colfax as one of the most distinguished engravers of his day, a strange, arresting character, old when the nineteenth century was young, the outbreak of the American Revolution to his death, he refused to execute any of the orders for bookplates which, in those days of the infancy of design and engraving in this country, cultivated Americans, especially southerners, were in the habit of sending to England. I had once seen and care fully studied several Colfax plates at the home of a collector who was one of our best customers and had invited me to a private view. But an American Colfax would upset all history and tradition.

"I do want to see it!" I cried. "You're sure it's a real Colfax? Do you know Hugh Colfax refused every American order he received, and he could have always named his own price? What's the owner's name? Is it dated?"

"Give me a chance!" begged Peter. "It's more than I got upstairs this morning. Actually, I don't dare leave the building until Mr. Darrow—Oh, he'll there goes that infernal time clock again! Excuse me, Constance; nerves are shattered."

"On about the bookplate?"

"Well, Thursday morning I had just picked up the catalogue in the exhibition room of the Richmond auction galleries, when my eyes lit on 'Notes on Medical Statistics,' et cetera. I asked the clerk to bring it out. He said another gentleman who had called for it was still examining it, and would I wait. I did, and glanced up the counter casually at the other gentleman, thinking I could get a line on him. He should be a real bidder. All I could see of him was his back, but it was enough. I considered him to be an exceedingly strange gentleman to be interested in an old law book. He was young and dressed like a doctor with a good job—bright blue suit, gray spats, slick black hair. While waiting his pleasure, I wandered off to look at some other exhibits near the door, and while I was examining them, a girl walked in from the street, past me. She was the loveliest girl, Constance, I've ever seen."

"What a relief! I saw I was no longer to be the greatest influence in Peter's life. Sometimes it had been pretty wearing, fond as I was of my little boy friend. Some one else could do it far better, I knew."

"How wonderful, Peter! And the bookplate?"

"I had to watch her; I couldn't help it," he resumed simply. "She hurried forward toward the counter, then suddenly she bounded back as if she had been hit! There was nobody at the counter except that man, and he had his back toward her, and was, moreover, completely absorbed in examining the cover of the book, which she was holding open. She dashed behind a big case of china, and disappeared."

"Well, I looked at some Chinese snuff-bottles and hooked rugs, and then decided it was time for the other fellow to leave. So I asked for the book again, and the clerk told me that a young lady was examining it now, and would I wait! And sure enough, up the counter was the same young lady, having doubtless, from her coils of rancor behind the case of china, beaten me to getting that book. The

Long Tools Save Lives

The longer the tool the shorter the casualty list, according to an experiment by a railroad. The old crossing signal of two long and two short toots was changed so that the longest tool was given last. It is explained in Popular Mechanics Magazine, and under the new plan the railroad had 28 fewer crossing accidents in a year. Under the old plan the most noise was made when the engine was farthest from the crossing. Under the new plan this is reversed.

gentleman of the spats has vanished. I was assuredly—what's the word?"

"Intelligent."

"Correct, especially as I at once perceived that the young lady was completely absorbed in examining the cover of the book, which she was holding open just as the man had; that is, as to look at the inside left-hand cover, I could see it had a bookplate on it."

"Well, that girl suddenly laid down the book on the counter, and fled out of the door. That time I held it. I wondered why in thunder those two young people could apparently be so interested in an ordinary bookplate. The first thing I noticed about it was that one corner was under the right-hand corner, under the snake, you know?"

"The snake? What in the world—ah, I have it! You mean 'the serpent,' twisted like a capital 'C,' that Colfax signed his best plates with; a circle means eternity; a serpent's wisdom had taught him how to draw immortal designs—modest old chap. Isn't it nice that the Legal federation has already ordered the book, so we shall have every bookplate collector in the city here to fight for the plate?"

"It wouldn't be the first time it has been fought for," broke in Peter, blithely. "You see, I judged those two young folks must be collectors of bookplates who each thought he—she—had stumbled on a real find in that old law book, and were keeping it dark so as to snap it up at a bargain. Everybody knows that once in a while cataloguers miss a trick like anybody else. Now, I had general standing orders to buy that book whenever I landed in libraries and museums, tracking down information about bookplates with snakes."

"I finally discovered Colfax, and figured out what you imply: that he was so much against Free States and the Near-West policy that no one had ever thought of his drawing a Yankee bookplate. But of course what nobody thinks of is usually right. I felt sure I'd come across something unique—and I have."

"Well, Thursday morning I had just picked up the catalogue in the exhibition room of the Richmond auction galleries, when my eyes lit on 'Notes on Medical Statistics,' et cetera. I asked the clerk to bring it out. He said another gentleman who had called for it was still examining it, and would I wait. Good Job for Hermit

Washington.—The lighthouse keeper, the prospector, the sheep herder have lonely jobs, but what is probably the loneliest of all is that of the forest-fire observer. Perched high on some towering mountain top in the cabin of his steel tower, surrounded for miles about by almost inaccessible forest, the fire observer goes for weeks, often months, without seeing another human being.

Not all contact with the world, however, is lost, for by the very nature of his work he must be in daily and sometimes hourly telephone communication with the ranger's or forester's headquarters. Equipped with the indispensable telephone, his maps, range finder, binoculars and meteorological instruments, the towerman keeps constant watch over the thousands of acres of forest land spread out below him for the first telltale signs of smoke.

The job of lookout, lonely and usually poorly paid as it is, nevertheless demands a type somewhat above the average in intelligence and fortitude to fill it. He must understand telephone line repair, must be able to read maps and know enough about trigonometry to locate forest fires by taking their bearings, must be able to make temperature and humidity readings on a wet and dry bulb thermometer, and he must be able to cook his own meals.

Some states and the federal government have employed women observers with good results. A woman lookout is quick to detect fires, accurate in locating them and deft when reporting them to headquarters. Where fire towers are situated near settlements or farms, women will often be found "manning" them.

These towers, the more modern of which are of galvanized steel, vary in height from 20 to 100 feet, though there are some even higher. When built on the highest peak of a mountain range a 60-foot tower will usually permit a view of all the surrounding forest. In clear weather the observer may be able to see 40 miles or more, but the average visibility is between 10 and 20 miles.

Goblin on Guard?

Natural Tunnel, Va.—Weird legends of a goblin, deranging the minds of marauders seeking treasure which tradition says is buried far up in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia where nature has formed a natural tunnel for railroads, are told by residents here.

The treasure is said to have been buried in a cave in the rock walls of the tunnel. White men, pursued by Indians, placed the treasure there, the legend says, and only one attempt has been made to recover it.

A box, rigged with ropes, was lowered from the top of the wall. The man in it was about fifty feet down when he saw the cave contained an eagle's nest. The eagle attacked him and in striking at the bird one of the ropes was severed, suspending the treasure seeker above the yawning cavern.

The other rope held, the story relates, but when the man was pulled to the top he was found to be demented as a result of the terrifying experience.

Another tale is that an Indian princess leaped from the towering wall of the tunnel to her death 500 feet below, because of her love for Chochua, an Indian brave from the sea, whom her father, a Mingo chief, refused to permit her to marry. The spirit of the girl is said to live in the tunnel.

The waters of Stony creek flow through part of the tunnel into Lynch river. The picturesque beauty of the section and the many Indian legends attract numerous tourists.

LEADERSHIP

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

IT WAS Auld the Goth who said to Wulf, the chief of the tribe, when he was hesitating as to his own action:

"If the bison-bull lie down and wallow, what will the herd do for a leader? If the king-wolf lose the scent, how will the pack hold it? If the Yalting forgets the song of Asgard, who will sing it to the heroes?"

Example is the strongest influence in leadership.

Clayton had charge of seven thousand men whose job was ship building during the World War—untrained, illiterate men most of them were, who were used to hard work and a rough life, and to be ruled with an iron wrist, and Clayton was a man of education and refinement. He had seen the world; he had known men of prominence and influence; he was a gentleman in every sense of the word, but for all his refinement of taste and education, he had no difficulty with his men, and the reason was that he lived with them, he ate the food that they ate, he slept as they slept, he worked as many hours daily and as hard as they worked, he lived soberly and discreetly as he would have liked them to live. They respected his character, they recognized his leadership, and they followed, as the pack follows the king-wolf.

The boss gave Williams very good advice when he took him on in a subordinate position. He emphasized the fact that regular and temperate habits were necessary to success. He gave Williams to understand that drinking and gambling were not consonant with progress in their firm. The advice was excellent and Williams listened to it with respect. But he had not been long with the firm until he learned that the boss was not following the advice which he had given his subordinates. His breath did not always suggest a respect for the Volstead act; his stories of what he had won in a friendly game with one of his neighbors did not indicate that he himself refrained from gambling, and if he did not, why should Williams? The boss had succeeded and had been neither temperate nor always scrupulous as to how he won his money. His example told strangely in molding Williams' character. He was the bison-bull lying down and wallowing, and the herd was following his example.

Gaston, who was head of his fraternity in the house. It was hard to keep them in at night—they were crazy about dates. It was difficult to keep them at their books, and their scholarships were not what it should be. He wanted advice.

"How many nights a wee: are you in?" I asked. He colored a little and hesitated.

"I am out a good deal," he confessed.

"And your grades?"

"Not all that they should be, I'm sorry to say."

It was the king-wolf losing the scent, and I tried to show him.

Light on Crabs

Washington.—An indication that at least one family of North Carolina sand crabs has an extremely aristocratic lineage, dating about 25,000,000 years, is contained in a report on new fossil discoveries in the Grand canyon by Dr. Charles W. Gilmore, noted paleontologist of the Smithsonian institution.

Tracks of the ancient creature that roamed around in the ooze which formed the foundation of the mountain before it was cut by the Colorado river were first found in 1903 by the late Dr. Charles D. Walcott in the Coconino sandstone on Grand View trail. Another specimen was found 12 years later by Prof. Charles Schuchert of Yale, and a third was discovered last year by Doctor Gilmore.

Using this as a type specimen for his study, he has concluded that the trackway probably was made by some crustacean in the Permian period of geological time. The sandstone slab shows two parallel lines of imprints in groups of four, arranged in a row of three regularly spaced tracks with the fourth offset inward.

The similarity of this arrangement to the tracks of living sand crabs was called to Doctor Gilmore's attention by Remington Kellogg of the United States biological survey, who observed these creatures recently on Hatteras island, N. C.

Chinese Reds Torture, Then Massacre Rich

Hankow.—Chinese sources, in giving details of the recent massacre at Lelyang, said Communists and disbanded soldiers fired the houses of all the well-to-do citizens who were penned inside with women and children, and burned to death.

Everybody who appeared to be prosperous was murdered in the southern Hunan city. Usually the victims were tortured first, their eyes being gouged out, their ears cut off. Whole families were so treated, parents being compelled to watch their children being mutilated and children to watch the torturing of their parents.

Several foreign missionaries were in the Lelyang area at the time and their fate was not known.

New York.—A visit to a mysterious race of warriors, possibly the descendants of South Sea Islanders who came to South America many centuries ago, was described by A. Hyatt Verrill of the Museum of the American Indian, Heye foundation, on his return from his sixtieth trip to South America.

Verrill said he found the tribe, numbering about 350 men and women, in almost impenetrable wilderness between Brazil and Bolivia. None of the tribe wears clothing. Verrill said, and the men have developed long beards of the type commonly seen in the Solomon Islands. The tribe members are nature worshippers, he said.

Man Not So Hungry After Eating Sixty Eggs

Fayetteville, W. Va.—A West Virginian has entered for national honors in egg eating. He is J. W. Carnifex of Hico, Fayette county.

H. L. Sandige, who conducts a general store at Hico and who furnished the eggs, says Carnifex, who is seventy-two, came into the store and after exchanging greetings said his appetite was unusually good, adding that if there was anything to eat on hand he would prove it.

Sandige said there was nothing much to eat except eggs, but that Carnifex could have all he wanted.

Sandige made good on the proposition, but it ruined his stock of eggs. Carnifex ate 60. A little figuring showed the lot weighed eight pounds. It took him only 15 minutes to do it.

"That last egg tasted as good as the first," Carnifex told the crowd that had gathered. "I never felt better in my life, only I'm not so hungry."

Bad Spelling Shows How Jews Talked Latin

Austin, Texas.—Bad spelling on tombstones in the Jewish catacombs of Rome indicates how the Jews who lived in Rome in the early Christian centuries pronounced Greek and Latin, according to Dr. Harry J. Leon, of the University of Texas.

Scholars have wondered whether the Jews who formed a settlement in Rome clung to their Hebrew ways or whether they did as the Romans did. Doctor Leon explains. Six Roman catacombs where the Jewish residents buried their dead are now known, and study of the inscriptions on the slabs and the gallery walls shows that the writing is three-fourths Greek and one-fourth Latin. Often words in the inscriptions are confused with other words of similar sound, so that they are misspelled in characteristic ways. Jewish ritualistic symbols on the tombstones were indeed written by Jewish people using foreign languages, Doctor Leon points out.

The Jewish population in Rome, which grew to about 40,000, was no more familiar with the Hebrew language than the average Jew of today. The more cultured among them spoke Latin as well as the popular Greek. The recent investigations indicate. Their inscriptions afford valuable material in tracing the history of the Greek and Latin languages in their development from the classical tongues of antiquity to the modern Greek and the romance languages of our day, Doctor Leon states.

Magical Power Failed

Wizard in Emergency

Howard Thurston, the magician, has astonished thousands while in Pittsburgh by extracting rabbits and American flags from the most unlikely places. It is even said that recently while paying a visit of charity to the home of a destitute miner, he saved and overjoyed the miner's wife by extracting $1 bills from her hair and presenting them to her with his compliments.

But while on a visit to our office the other day, his magical gifts evidently deserted him temporarily. Wishing to write a note to the dramatic critic, who happened to be out, he searched in vain through his clothing for a pencil, turning his pockets inside out, with no end of trouble.—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.

Valued Souvenir

Mrs. Mary Sylvester of Middleborough, Mass., has a widely prized souvenir. It is a piece of the telephone wire over which the first message between Boston and New York was sent 85 years ago. She was in a Brooklyn audience that heard the singing of "America" over the new device.

Radio Tests Paper

Another practical use for radio has been announced by Maine paper manufacturers, who have been employing it to test the quality (thickness, tensile, dampness) of paper produced. A radio fan, experimenting with paper, threw the set out of tune, discovered that the thickness, or other characteristics of the paper, produced a measurable difference in the regulation of the dial. The result has been the installation in several paper plants of a specially prepared radio apparatus on the paper machines to test the moisture content of papers, the radio reporting to the machine tender whether the paper is being dried to the exact extent required.

Earthquakes Made Study

Earthquake studies are to be conducted on a large scale in Soviet Russia, according to information received in Washington. One hundred seismograph stations are to be constructed and equipped with the latest type of instruments. Inasmuch as the whole vast interior of European Asia, the scene of frequent earthquakes, is now virtually without facilities for the study of these phenomena, it is expected that the completion of this ambitious program will result in substantial additions to the world's earthquake information.

MENLO PARK Possession Taken of Monastery by Holy Sisters

To Live in Palo Alto
Mrs. Emma Midgley, a pioneer of Menlo Park has moved to Palo Alto to reside with her son. She came to Menlo Park in the latter eighties. Her home on Mills avenue has been rented to Mrs. E. Terwilliger, a foster daughter.

Visits Old Friends Here

George Golder, a former Menlo Park boy, visited friends and schoolmates here on Sunday last. His father, the late Louis Golder, was the first hotel man in town, having conducted the Golder hotel in the sixties. Here George Golder was born and grew to manhood. He is a prominent businessman of San Francisco. He always delights in visiting the happy scenes of other days when Menlo Park was a very small village with only a few hundred inhabitants. Now it is putting on municipal airs with high aspirations as a city of sixth class.

To Clean-up Cemetery

The work of cleaning up and improving Holy Cross cemetery will begin shortly. All contributions for this work will be collected by a committee to be named next week. Let all be generous to this noble cause. Do not forget the dead. It is true they are at rest, but let us make their resting place as beautiful as possible, as attractive as can be. We loved them in life, let us honor them in death by giving their graves a pleasing appearance.

Election Returns

Despite the bitterness injected into the campaign, even the joys of Easter not staying the pen nor curbing the tongue of the villifier, the city election on Monday last passed off quietly. There was no excitement of any kind. Voters came to the polls early, registering their choice and went about their business. The respective factions saw to it that their friends voted. A big vote was polled, showing the interest taken by the citizens of the young municipality. The big surprise of the contest was the large vote given to W. H. Weeden, who lead the candidates for trustee. Another surprise was the vote accorded Alexander Walker, who won fifth place on the list of trustees. The handsome vote received by E. J. McLaughlin was also very gratifying to his friends. There were 530 votes polled.

The result of the election was as follows:
W. H. Weeden, 364; A. E. Blake, 361; W. E. Dale, 219; J. C. Ellis, 211; Alexander Walker, 248; E. J. McLaughlin, 232; J. J. Harcom, 213; Fred Neesler, 178; J. C. Brown, 174.

The board will meet next Tuesday evening. The members will caucus during the week and arrange an official program. The new council will work in harmony and for the best interest of the city. Now that the election has been settled by the people everyone should forget his or her differences and co-operate with the governing body which will hold office for two and four years.

Mrs. M. I. Kurtz, the popular clerk, had no opposition, neither did treasurer Ryan. While the new councilmen are being felicitated they will not disclose what the personnel of the city government will be.

What Can Mother Nature Do?

Staid Old Mother Nature demonstrated this week that she could be freakish when she wanted to be. It is surprising, however, to know how the ancient lady could play her pranks on an innocent little chicken. An old hen attached to the barn yard of Mrs. Robert McNally this week brought forth a brood of little ones, among which was a freak having four legs and no wings. The "old lady" must have been nodding when she permitted the wings to be omitted and instead gave the poor chicken a double dose of feet. All the neighbors viewed the freak with awe but it did not live long after birth, passing to the happy animal kingdom above shortly after emerging from its shell enclosure.

Lodge Elects Trustees

Three members of Menlo Park Lodge F. & A. M. were elected as trustees of the lodge last Friday evening. They are E. H. Schroder, F. C. Metcalf and F. S. Becker.

The Last Will of W. J. Murray

The last will and testament of the late W. J. Murray was filed for probate in the office of County Clerk Elizabeth M. Kneese, last Monday by Attorney Frank R. Cain, attorney for the executors. The will was executed on February 11, 1923.

The petition states that the value of the estate is in excess of $10,000 but it is believed it will reach the $50,000 mark. It consists of valuable realty in Menlo Park.

James E. and Thomas L. Murray and Mercedes O'Rourke, nephews and nieces, are named as executors and executrix, respectively for the estate. The legatees are Florence Gilbert, 651 University avenue, Palo Alto, bequeathed a diamond scarf pin; Stephen Gilbert, 1200 Dolores street, San Francisco, given a set of diamond cuff links; James Murray, Menlo Park, a scarf pin; Mercedes O'Rourke, a gold watch; Emma J. Strubling, a diamond brooch; $1500 was given, and to John Wood Murray, another nephew, $1000 in cash. The residue of the estate is to be divided equally among Thomas L. and James E. Murray and Mercedes O'Rourke. The will asks that his property be kept from sale until five years, unless the three executors desire its sale before. He also asks that the executors to erect granite headstones over the graves in the Murray plot.

Attorney Frank R. Cain, Menlo Park, one of the subscribing witnesses to the will is counsel for the executors. A hearing is set for May 10.

WOODSIDE

Mrs. William Roth has leased the historic "dobe corner," where the La Honda and King's mountain roads branch, and is having repairs made upon the ancient structure.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Elliott have returned to Woodside. Mrs. Elliott spent most of the winter at Palm Springs, the now-popular desert resort in southern California.

Dr. Bradford Leavitt of Pasadena visited his place here this week. Mrs. John D. Gish is a guest of the Leavitts at Pasadena.

Preparations are being made

By D. E. O'KEEFE

Last Monday the Corpus Christi nuns took formal possession of their new monastery, magnificent in appearance and picturesque from an architectural point of view and a monument to the zeal and devotion of the good sisters and to the Dominican Order to which they belong.

The event was honored by the celebration of the holy mass in the public chapel of the massive building. Father A. L. McMahon, O. V. S. T. M., the provincial of the Dominican Order on the coast. Around the altar gathered twenty-five white-robed Dominican priests while to the front of the altar knelt twenty of the sister nuns belonging to the Dominican Order from different sections of the bay counties and coming to the rear were the laity and friends of the incoming sisters.

Father McMahon delivered an eloquent sermon giving a brief history of the order and telling how the foundation of Perpetual Adoration was first started in San Francisco in 1911 and how by the efforts of a pious and wealthy woman of San Francisco had brought the sisters to the city, installing them in her home there in 1920. Father McMahon dwelt eloquently upon the good work, sacrifice, prayer and devotion of the sisters and assuring all of the blessing that would come from such an institution in the diocese. He said the completion of the monastery was the culmination of a long cherished wish of Archbishop Hanna to have the contemplative order in his diocese where perpetual adoration in honor of God would go on indefinitely. Father McMahon spoke of the manifold favors and blessings that would come to the community by the presence of the Corpus Christi nuns.

After the mass the visitors went through the big building, assisting in the house warming, and were greeted by the sisters, who were radiant with happiness in occupying their new home which will be their abiding place for all time.

Late in the afternoon benediction was given by Archbishop E. J. Hanna. A large number of people attended this impressive service, which closed the day's event that will live long in the memory of those who attended.

The building was started last June by Sampson & Company, the contractors, and completed at a cost of a quarter of a million dollars. Architect Beeson planned the structure which is an exact reproduction of the one owned by the nuns in New York.

by the Parent-Teacher Association, for a May-day fête to be held at the local school grounds on the afternoon of May 1st. There will be a parade and games and various contests of skill with prizes for the victors.

The Rudolph Schillings have returned to their home here for the summer season.

Mrs. Virginia Miller and son are expected soon on a visit to Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. Parlin and her grandmother, Mrs. Bogie.

The rose hedges, for which Woodside is noted, are in their gayest dress. The pink and white

City? As time goes on other buildings will be erected to meet the needs of the order.

This branch of the Dominican Order comes down in direct lineage from the great Monastery of Prouille, founded by St. Dominic himself in France in 1205. Many other foundations were later made in France, and from the Monastery of Oullins (Lyons), there came to the United States, in 1880, a little band of four nuns, to found the first house of the order in this country. In this group were two American nuns, who had joined the community in France, with the intention of later introducing Dominican contemplative life and Perpetual Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament in the United States.

The Monastery of Oullins had been a tribute of faith and gratitude to God from a pious lady, the Countess of Villeneuve, and to this foundation had been granted not only the privilege of Perpetual Adoration within its walls, but the privilege was open also to every future Monastery taking its rise therefrom, being dependent however, on the approbation of the Ordinary. Thus in all the Monasteries of the United States, Perpetual Adoration is maintained. The first Monastery was at Newark, and the following are the foundations which have since been made: Hunt's Point, New York, 1889; Detroit 1906; Cincinnati, 1915; Albany 1915; San Francisco, 1921; Los Angeles 1924.

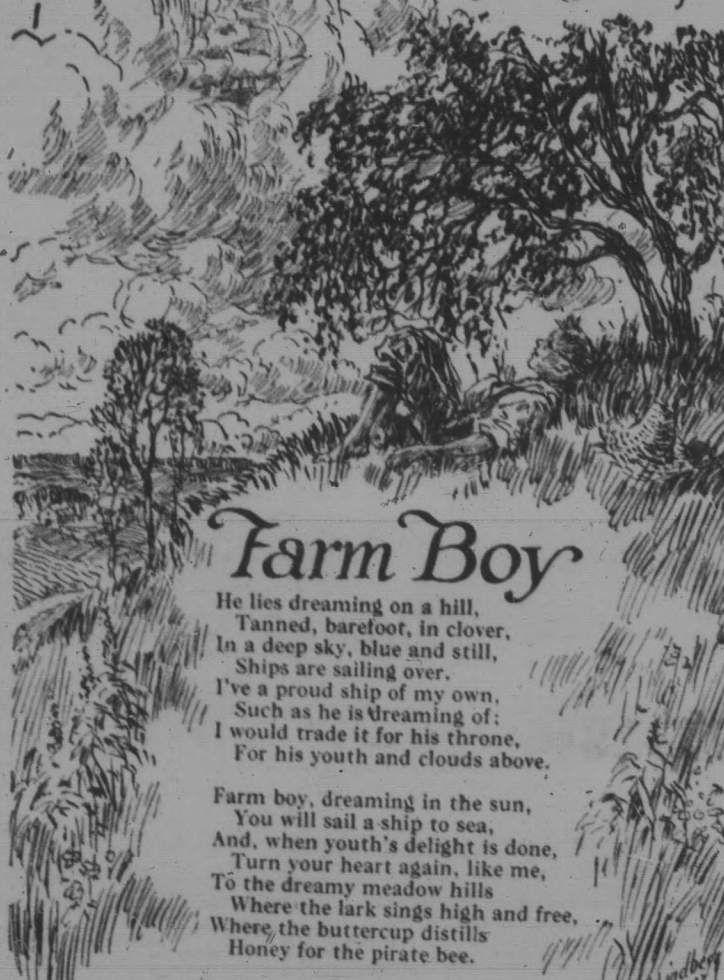

The chapel of Perpetual Adoration is subdivided, for the religious and laity, by a wall broken by the open niche for the Throne of the Blessed Sacrament, to which ascends on either side a long semi-circular flight of steps. To this archway, in front of the grille, stands the Altar, where the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass is celebrated. The elevated niche where the Blessed Sacrament is perpetually exposed, is a monument of most exquisite design and workmanship. It is finished in white marble, a door of heavy plate glass on either side. The Sacred Host is perfectly visible to adorers in both divisions of the chapel; but in the interior by day and by night, there are watchers, two at least, before the Eucharistic Presence. In the outer chapel, memorial lamps hang suspended at either side, the graded ascent of crimson light producing a beautiful effect in the dim chapel. They are supplied with oil at the expense of those who wish to have them burned for their private intentions or in memory of the dead. They are attended by the outside sisters. The waxen tapers, close to the Blessed Sacrament, burn during the night in the cloistered chapel.

Cherokee, the yellow Banksia, the old gold of the Glazenwood and the varying shades of the rambling roses produce a color effect like that of a painter's palette.

Woodside now has a fully registered troop of Girl Scouts which has chosen the name of Wildrose Troop. Miss Alice Phillips, regional director of this district, recently visited the troop and invested the girls with their tenderfoot badges. The members are Phyllis Blackington, Helen Hallett, Minnie Helser, Marie and Frances Huebel, Edith and Annie Ferrari, Virginia Davis Davis, Gladys and Viola Kelley and Jennie Rae Christensen with Mrs. Esther Givens as captain, assisted by her sister Miss Mary Griffin of Stanford.

Songs of Plain Folks

By James Lewis Hays

Farm Boy

He lies dreaming on a hill,
Tanned, barefoot, in clover,
In a deep sky, blue and still,
Ships are sailing over.
I've a proud ship of my own,
Such as he is dreaming of,
I would trade it for his throne,
For his youth and clouds above.

Farm boy, dreaming in the sun,
You will sail a ship to sea,
And, when youth's delight is done,
Turn your head again, like me,
To the dreamy meadow hills,
Where the lark is high and free,
Where the buttercup distills
Honey for the pirate bee.

Menlo Park Masons To Hear Early History

Leon M. Whitsell, president of the California State Railroad commission, will address a meeting of Menlo Park lodge No. 651 F. & A. M. this evening on the subject of "Early Masonic History in California." Whitsell is Senior Grand Deacon of the Grand Lodge of California and is also chairman of a committee appointed by Grand Master Will H. Fisher to compile data in regard to the history of the craft during the formative period of the state. In this work he has acquired a vast fund of interesting information upon which he will draw for this evening's talk.

The story of the activity of the Masonic order in the early days here is extremely interesting, and an invitation has been issued by the master of Menlo Park lodge to all Masons interested to attend this lodge tonight and hear Senior Grand Deacon Whitsell.
